

Emergency Preparedness:
Pearls and Perils
- A Boston Marathon Story!
an Interprofessional Clinical Seminar with
Joseph Murphy, PhD, ATC, Lebanon Valley College

Monday, MARCH 5

Jordan A Ballroom • Boise State's Student Union Building
6:30 - 8:30 p.m.

Refreshments will be provided.
Seminar will be streamed live.

Dr. Joseph Murphy is an Assistant Professor and the Director of the Athletic Training program at Lebanon Valley College in Annville, Pennsylvania. He has served as an Athletic Trainer for the Boston Marathon for many years, including 2013 when the marathon was bombed.

We will examine the roles of healthcare providers in a large scale sporting event. Students will work together to understand each other's roles and the steps that go into preparing for such an event. The seminar will conclude with a first-hand account of 2013 Boston Marathon tragedy and its aftermath on the healthcare providers.

The purpose of the IPE Clinical Seminar is to provide learners with evidence-based knowledge and skills on a selected health care topic through an interprofessional lens. The seminar will provide an opening lecture and discussion from a "clinical expert" and include an interprofessional team learning activity for participants.

Target participants are professional program students from the Treasure Valley including Boise State University - College of Health Sciences, Idaho State University – Meridian Health Science Center, and the University of Washington – Medical Education Program (WWAMI).