What has it meant, historically, to be an American farmer, slave, wage laborer, manager, or owner? How can primary sources—diaries and speeches, archival documents and folk songs—help us to better understand our past?

Prof. Shaun Nichols
Department of History
For more information email shaunnichols@boisestate.edu