Explores key concepts, attitudes, and themes concerning gender and sexuality in the Middle East. Drawing on disciplines of history, religious studies, and anthropology, the course investigates the complexities of gender identities and practices in light of ethno-religious diversity of the region as well as paradoxes of religious law and realities of everyday life.

History is moving beyond stereotypes to learn about lives of ordinary people around the world

Prof. Ida Meftahi
Department of History
For more information email idameftahi@boisestate.edu