In this course, we will use historical methodology to examine the processes of globalization, its genesis and evolution, and its significance for the modern world. Above all, the class is designed to introduce students to key theoretical debates and multidisciplinary discussions about globalization, and to reflect upon how an historical approach might contribute to our understanding of this phenomenon.

Prof. Micah Wright
Department of History
For more information email micahwright89@boisestate.edu